Pastor's Note

DEEDS OF MERCY

Christian Lent is consecrated by the three practices of Prayer, Fasting and Almsgiving. It is not that we are expected to pray, fast, and perform deeds of mercy only during the six weeks of the year which encompass Lent: obviously these are practices which we should be living out all the time. They are ingredients of essential Christianity. But Lent affords us the opportunity to practice them with better concentration and renewed act of will. I want to speak more here about the practice of almsgiving.

If we interpret almsgiving just as “giving to charity” now and then in order to be considered (in our own eyes and in the eyes of others) a “good person” then we are looking at it too narrowly. Opening our wallets or our checkbooks to a good cause may or may not reflect the Christian spirit of doing a deed of mercy in order to relieve the wants of others. In Christianity, an alms or a “mercy-deed” is a material favor given to someone in want for the sake of the love of Christ.

It is therefore different from the support we are bound to give to the support of the Church or from the taxes we pay for the maintenance of civil society (although the portion of our tax money which is used to fund programs that help people who are impoverished or on low-income may be considered an alms-deed). It is also distinct from other kinds of worthy benefactions, such as supporting the arts or building a community playground.

In his Encyclical Rerum Novarum (1891), Pope Leo XIII summarized the principle of Christian almsgiving:

Man should not consider his external possessions as his own, but as common to all, so as to share them without difficulty when others are in need. Whence the Apostle says: Command the rich of the world to give with ease. This is a duty not of justice (except in extreme cases), but of Christian charity—a duty not enforced by human law. But the laws and judgments of men must yield to the laws and judgments of Christ the true God, who in many ways urges on His followers the practice of almsgiving.

We might outline the basic guidelines for our personal, private almsgiving as follows.

1. Alms are given out of our superfluous income and material goods—what is over-and-above—not out of what we need to maintain ourselves at a decent level and meet our responsibilities in life.
2. Alms should not be done carelessly. For example, the Apostolic Constitutions of the early Church stated: Alms must not be given to the malicious, the intemperate or the lazy, lest a premium should be set on vice.
3. Our almsgiving should be done with discretion: taking care not to embarrass the persons receiving it nor upsetting them with our idea of good, but not theirs; it should be timely, cheerful, self-less, and abundant according to our means.

KNOW YOUR CATHOLIC FAITH

GOSPEL OF SAINT LUKE BIBLE STUDY Luke 7:18-23

The account of Jesus' exchange with two messengers from St. John the Baptist challenges us to consider seriously all the empirical evidence that should lead us to make an act of faith. St. John (imprisoned at this point) sends messengers to Jesus with the following question: "Are you the one who is to come, or should we look for another?" (v. 20). Jesus had just raised someone from the dead, and St. Luke tells us that when these messengers came to Jesus, He was already in the midst of healing many and performing exorcisms (v. 21). The obvious answer to their question would seem to be, "Yes!" Indeed, it seems odd that the forerunner would question the identity of the one He had so clearly and unwaveringly affirmed earlier (cf. John 1:29-34, 3:27-36). In fact, many commentators have agreed that St. John did not need assurance about Jesus' identity for himself. Rather, he sent these disciples to Jesus so that they might settle their own doubts by seeing Him and his works first-hand.

Jesus certainly helps these disciples in this regard. Rather than simply saying "yes" to their question, He enumerates the plentiful evidence that clearly attests to His messiahship and divinity, giving them more than enough proof for them to come to the conclusion on their own. We can compare this enumeration with Jesus' own mission statement in 4:18-19. Here, the prophet Isaiah foretells a Messiah who will "bring glad tidings to the poor" and "recovery of sight to the blind," among other things. In 7:22, Jesus mentions these things, and more. He explains to the messengers, "Go and tell John what you have seen and heard: the blind regain their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, the poor have the good news proclaimed to them." As the commentary in the Ignatius Study Bible indicates, these are all things that Isaiah linked with the coming of the Messiah. Thus, we see the recurring Lucan theme of promise and fulfillment, which is centered on the other recurring Lucan theme of Jesus' identity as Son of God and Messiah.

The second-to-last item in Jesus' list is worth considering further: raising the dead. No mere man can do that on his own authority. Indeed, no one in the Old Testament except the prophets Elijah and Elisha had ever performed a resurrection, as the Ignatius Study Bible notes (cf. 1 Kings 17:17-24, 2 Kings 4:32-37). Interestingly enough, as the commentary also explains, it was the son of a widow that Elijah raised to life, which is exactly the same miracle Jesus performed immediately prior to this episode. Resurrection is a miracle surpassing all others in power and greatness. As we prepare to celebrate Jesus' resurrection at Easter, Lent is a challenge for us to renew our confidence in the resurrection. In our daily conduct, are we consciously "await(ing) a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will change our lowly body to be like His glorious body" (cf. Phil. 3:20-21)? If He has the power to do this (and He does, for He has proven it in His own resurrection), perhaps we can yield more fully to His lordship in all areas of our lives.

Jesus then tells the messengers in v. 23, "Blessed is the one who takes no offense at me." As I mentioned in a previous post, blessedness is a deeply seated kind of happiness that transcends merely feeling happy. It is the kind of happiness that rests secure in the certainty of a known reality. For St. Luke, the Blessed Virgin Mary epitomizes blessedness (cf. 1:42, 45, 48), because she, and all disciples who follow her, "hear the word of God and act on it/observe it" (cf. 8:21, 11:28). The message to the messengers of St. John is the same message for us: the witness that Jesus has given is indisputable. Now the tennis ball is in our court: are we going to be like Mary, and truly hear and receive this good news about the resurrection? Is Jesus merely a nice compartmentalized part of our week, or is He someone to whom we entrust our whole life and our eternity?

SECOND SUNDAY IN LENT

INTROIT: Psalm 24: 6, 3, 22 Remember, O Lord, Thy depths of compassion, and Thy mercies that are from the beginning of the world, lest at any time our enemies rule over us: deliver us, O God of Israel, from all our tribulations. Psalm 24: 1-2 To Thee, O Lord, have I lifted up my soul: in Thee, O my God, I put my trust; let me not be ashamed. V. Glory be to the Father.

COLLECT: O God, who seest that we have no power whatever from ourselves; keep us both outwardly in our bodies and inwardly in our souls; that we may be defended from all adversities which may happen to the body and from all evil thoughts which may hurt the soul. Through our Lord.

EPISTLE: 1 Thessalonians 4: 1-7 Brethren: We pray and beseech you in the Lord Jesus that, as you have received from us, how you ought to walk and to please God, so also you would walk, that you may abound the more. For you know what precepts I have given to you by the Lord Jesus. For this is the will of God, your sanctification: that you should abstain from fornication, that every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour; not in the passion of lust, like the Gentiles that know not God: and that no man overreach nor circumvent his brother in business: because the Lord is the avenger of all these things, as we have told you before and have testified. For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto sanctification: in Christ Jesus our Lord.

GRADUAL: Psalm 24: 17-18 The troubles of my heart are multiplied: deliver me from my necessities, O Lord. V. See my abjection and my labour, and forgive me all my sins. TRACT: Psalm 105: 1-4 Give glory to the Lord, for He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever. V. Who shall declare the powers of the Lord: who shall set forth all His praises? V. Blessed are they that keep judgment and do justice at all times. V. Remember us, O Lord, in the favour of Thy people: visit us with Thy salvation.

GOSPEL: Matthew 17: 1-9 At that time Jesus taketh Peter and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart: and He was transfigured before them. And His face did shine as the sun: and His garments became white as snow. And behold there appeared to them Moses and Elias talking with Him. And Peter answering, said to Jesus: Lord, it is good for us to be here: if Thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles, one for Thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias. And as He was yet speaking, behold a bright cloud overshadowed them. And lo, a voice out of the cloud, saying: This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased: hear ye Him. And the disciples hearing, fell upon their face and were very much afraid. And Jesus came and touched them, and said to them: Arise, and fear not. And they lifting up their eyes saw no one, but only Jesus. And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying: Tell the vision to no man till the Son of Man be risen from the dead.

OFFERTORY: Psalm 118: 47, 18 I will meditate on Thy commandments, which I have loved exceedingly: and I will lift up my hands to Thy commandments, which I have loved.

SECRET: Peacefully look down, we beseech Thee, O Lord, upon these sacrifices, that they may both increase our devotion and contribute to our salvation. Through our Lord.

Preface of Lent

COMMUNION: Psalm 5: 2-4 Understand my cry: hearken to the voice of my prayer, O my King and my God: for to Thee will I pray, O Lord.

POSTCOMMUNION We humbly beseech Thee, almighty God, that we whom Thou hast strengthened with Thy sacraments, may henceforth serve and please Thee in worthiness of life. Through our Lord.
