Pastor's Note

THE “DAY OF THE FOUR POPES”

Last Sunday's dual canonization ceremony in Rome for Popes John XXIII and Pope John Paul II is being called “The Day of the Four Popes”. Not only were two Holy Popes canonized together—an unprecedented occurrence—but two living Popes were there to preside over it: Pope Francis and his predecessor, Pope-emeritus Benedict XVI. Thus, “The Day of the Four Popes”.

In an essay which was published in The Wall Street Journal Weekend Edition, April 26-27, 2014, editor-at-large for the Jesuit magazine America Fr. James Martin, S.J., predicted that much of the media coverage would be how Pope Francis was canonizing one “liberal” Pope and one “conservative” Pope to keep everybody happy:

Here's the short-hand narrative about the canonizations of Popes John XXIII and John Paul II that you're about to hear this weekend

(or may already have heard). Ready? The first was a liberal, and the second was a conservative.

Fr. Martin then went on to give examples of how neither of these men could be fairly characterized according to these political-spectrum terms liberal-or-conservative. With regard to Pope John XXIII, who was crowned as pope with all of the pomp and pageantry of the traditional papal monarchy:

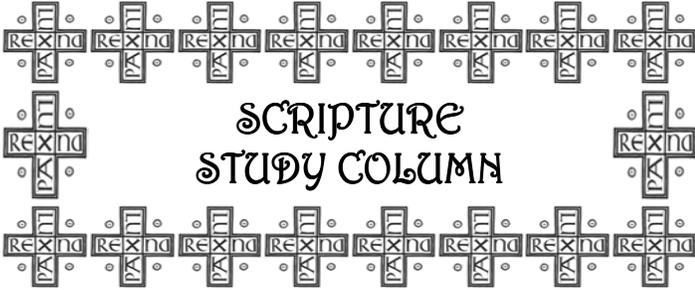

John's pronouncements used the papal “We”, and he once issued a document called “Veterum Sapientiam,” recommending the use of Latin in seminary training and throughout the universal church. Indeed, one of his closest advisers and his personal secretary, the now 98 year-old Cardinal Loris Capovilla, called him a “great conservative”.

This is, I think, an important point: to separate the fact from fiction, particularly with regard to Pope John, since his name and legacy are often invoked as a justification for the radical changes introduced into Catholic faith-life and worship after the Second Vatican Council, changes which Pope John did not live to see and which he had never advocated.

When Pope Benedict XVI issued his motu proprio Summorum Pontificum in 2007, vindicating the lasting value of the traditional Latin Mass and granting it a regularized place within the post-Vatican II Church, he referred to it as the “Pio-Johannine Mass”. By this term he meant the Mass as it had been codified by Pope Pius V after the Council in Trent in the late 1500s and as it had continued, basically unchanged, through the reign of Pope John XXIII. The 1962 Missal, which is the Mass book we are authorized to use for the celebration of the traditional Latin Mass—the “extraordinary form” of the Roman Rite—is the Missal of Pope John XXIII, containing the one change he did personally make in the Mass: the insertion of St. Joseph's name into the Canon of the Mass.

GOSPEL OF SAINT LUKE BIBLE STUDY (Luke 8:26-39)

The healing of the Gerasene demoniac can seem like a difficult passage to digest in modern times, because the fruits of Enlightenment philosophy have banished the demonic from our radar, deeming it far-fetched and superstitious. The truth of the matter is that demonic possession is just as real and scary as it was in Jesus' day, regardless of how we might feel about it. Indeed, only Christ and his Church can provide the power to deliver man from the devil and to protect him from his grip.

Last week, I mentioned how Jesus' calming the storm at sea was to prepare the disciples for this dramatic exorcism. As the disciples come to the land, the demon-possessed man finds them, and begins shouting at Jesus in terror (vv. 27-28). This should both alarm and console us. This man was completely out of control: he lived in the tombs (a fitting image for what possession does to a person, as one commentator explained), and he had supernatural strength (he could break chains). Yet, as Jesus draws near, the man begs Jesus not to torment him! Jesus commands the demon to reveal its name. The name "Legion" reveals that the man is possessed by many demons (v. 30). As the commentaries indicate, a legion was composed of six thousand soldiers. Jesus then commands the demons to depart and to go into a nearby herd of pigs, and when they do, they fall off the cliff and drown (vv. 32-33).

Only Jesus has the authority to command evil spirits. As St. Luke shows in the next chapter, Jesus gives this authority to His apostles personally and explicitly (cf. 9:1). They, in turn, give it to their successors, as St. Luke also shows us in the Acts of the Apostles. The same authority resides in the bishops and priests of today who act in the Person of Christ and by His Name. As St. Paul explains, "at the Name of Jesus every knee should bend," (cf. Phil. 2:10), including demons. Eastertide celebrates the wonderful truth of Christ's invincible resurrection power, which is fully operative in the life of the Church, including the rites of exorcism.

In every ecclesial exorcism lawfully performed by an authorized bishop or priest, and using the Church's ritual, two things are critical for success. Firstly, the exorcist must prompt the demon to admit its name, for the name indicates one's identity and person. Knowing the demon's name allows the exorcist to make the demon answerable and accountable to Jesus. Secondly, the exorcist MUST work only and absolutely by the power and authority of the Name of Jesus. No exorcist in his right mind would command a demon in his own name or by his own authority, for the demon is not answerable to man. Demons like to challenge exorcists to take them on with human resources alone. Big mistake! The critical part of the exorcism rite is the expulsion proper in the Name of Jesus. By no other means will an exorcism occur.

When the townspeople see the delivered man sitting at the feet of Jesus, "clothed and in his right mind," they are "seized with fear" (v. 35). Unfortunately, they ask Jesus to leave (v. 37). Thus, they fail to recognize the human dignity of the delivered man, as well as Jesus' identity as Son of God. Nothing could have demonstrated more clearly to them who Jesus is, and, as the commentary in the Orthodox Study Bible explains, how precious every human person is to Christ, even the demon-possessed.

GOOD SHEPHERD SUNDAY

INTROIT: Psalm 32: 5-6 The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord, alleluia: by the word of the Lord were the heavens made, alleluia, alleluia. Ps.32:1 Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous: praise is comely for the upright. V. Glory be.

COLLECT O God, who by the humility of Thy Son hast raised up a fallen world, grant to Thy faithful people abiding joy; that those whom Thou hast delivered from the perils of eternal death, Thou mayest cause to enjoy endless happiness. Through the same.

EPISTLE: 1 Peter 2: 21-25 Dearly beloved, Christ suffered for us, leaving you an example, that you should follow His steps. Who did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth. Who when He was reviled, did not revile: when He suffered, He threatened not, but delivered Himself to him that judged Him unjustly: who His own self bore our sins in His body upon the tree: that we, being dead to sins, should live to justice: by whose stripes you were healed. For you were as sheep going astray: but you are now converted to the shepherd and bishop of your souls.

FIRST ALLELUIA: Luke 24: 35 Alleluia, alleluia. V. The disciples knew the Lord Jesus in the breaking of bread. SECOND ALLELUIA: John 10: 14 Alleluia. V. I am the good shepherd: and I know My sheep, and Mine know Me. Alleluia.

GOSPEL: John 10: 11-16 At that time Jesus said to the Pharisees: I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth his life for his sheep. But the hireling, and he that is not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming and leaveth the sheep and flieth: and the wolf catcheth and scattereth the sheep: and the hireling flieth, because he is a hireling, and he hath no care for the sheep. I am the good shepherd: and I know Mine, and Mine know Me, as the Father knoweth Me, and I know the Father: and I lay down My life for My sheep. And other sheep I have that are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear My voice, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd.

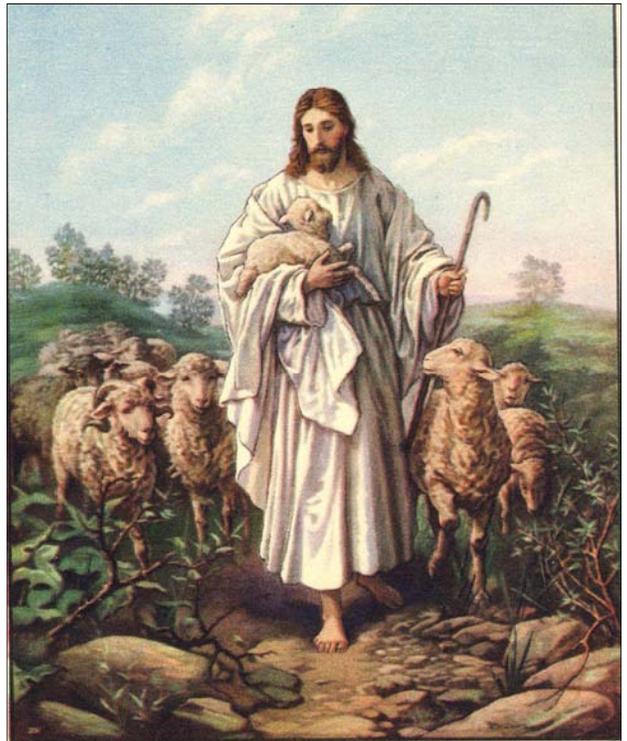

OFFERTORY: Psalm 62: 2, 5 O God, my God, to Thee do I watch at break of day; and in Thy name I will lift up my hands, alleluia.

SECRET May this holy oblation, O Lord, ever draw down upon us Thy saving blessing; that it may perfect in virtue what it represents in mystery. Through our Lord.

Preface for Easter

COMMUNION: John 10: 14 I am the good shepherd, alleluia: and I know My sheep, and Mine know Me, alleluia, alleluia.

POSTCOMMUNION Grant us, we beseech Thee, almighty God, that we who obtain from Thee the grace of a new life, may every glory in Thy gift. Through our Lord.
